Green Hills Of Africa
Green Hills of Africa is a 1935 work of nonfiction by American writer Ernest Hemingway. Hemingway's second work of nonfiction, Green Hills of Africa is an account of a month on safari he and his wife, Pauline Marie Pfeiffer, took in East Africa during December 1933.

Green Hills of Africa - Wikipedia
There is much great writing in "Green Hills of Africa." It is Hemingway after all. But the targeted slaughter of beautiful animals--only the biggest and the 'best' of a species--made me wonder less about the allure of big game trophy hunting and more about the pathology of it.

Green Hills of Africa: The Hemingway Library Edition ...
When it was first published in 1935, The New York Times called Green Hills of Africa, "The best-written story of big-game hunting anywhere." Hemingway's evocative account of his safari through East Africa with his wife, Pauline Pfeiffer, captures his fascination with big-game hunting. In examining the grace of the chase and the ferocity of the kill, Hemingway looks inward, seeking to explain the lure of the hunt and the primal undercurrent that comes alive on the plains of Africa.

Green Hills of Africa (Audiobook) by Ernest Hemingway ...
Hemingway's first venture into nonfiction, Green Hills of Africa chronicles his adventures on safari in the early 1930s and brings to life the beauty of the wilderness that was, even then, threatened by the incursion of man. Woodcuts, scattered throughout the book, add another dimension to this view of the hard-edged, rugged world of wild Africa.
