One thing should be clear: clothes do not make a man a gentleman; and, by the same token, a real gentleman is always a gentleman, even without his clothes. However, it would be a mistake to conclude from this that our appear- ance is not important. Clothes are the visiting card of a per- sonality, and should therefore be chosen to match it.

Bernhard Roetzel - Wikipedia

The biggest lack was in the section on suits and sports coats, so I added more in-depth details on Italian tailoring and Naples. I also love the new pages on the classic Hunter Wellies from Scotland and of course the article on Neal Boyarsky from New York City. Neal is one of the most knowledgeable persons in men's fashion, and his shop [Beckenstein Men's Fabircs] is a real treasure trove.
