"If there are two verbs in a sentence the second one should be in the infinitive form" is certainly not a rule that I would teach. Make that "in some verb phrases a verb that is usually conjugated is followed by another verb that is in the infinitive form", and you'll have something that does work in some specific contexts, with some specific verbs.

Irregular Verbs in the Preterite - Verbos Irregulares. Many of the irregular Spanish verbs in the preterite follow the same pattern. They change the stem of the verb into a different stem, and then all of them add the same set of endings. These endings are different to the ones that regular preterite verbs in Spanish share.

Some French verbs can be followed by an infinitive (the to form of the verb) and linked to it by either de or à, or no preposition at all. This is also true of verbs and their objects: the person or thing that the verb 'happens' to. For more information on Verbs followed by an infinitive, see Verbs followed by an infinitive.
