Culture defines everything that man does, and how he does it, in the process of self-fulfilment. Culture is the method of the self-realisation of the individual and society, the measure of the development of both. Various fields in knowledge— ethnography, archeology, history, literary criticism and so on—study the various spheres of culture.

Defining civilization Maclver and Page (1962) said, 'by civilization we mean the whole mechanism and organization which man has designed in his endeavour to control the conditions of life'. Similarly, S.M. Fairchild (1908) argued that it is the higher stage of cultural development characterized by intellectual, aesthetic, technological and spiritual attainment.

Difference between Culture and Civilization (9 points)

In some ways, traditional culture and modern culture are alike. Any culture is a system of learned and shared meanings. People learn and share things over the course of generations, and so we say they are a culture. Traditional and modern culture function similarly because both are ways of thinking, ways of relating to people and to the universe.

The cultural dimension Masculinity - Femininity says something about the expected behavior of men and women in any given society. To simplify it: in high scoring cultures, there seems to be relatively little role overlap; men are supposed to provide for their families, be the head of the family and do manly tasks like taking the garbage out.

Culture and Gender Roles in Society. Are Men and Women Equal?

Civilization is described as a process of civilizing or say developing the state of human society, to the extent that the culture, industry, technology, government, etc. reaches the maximum level. The term 'civilization' is derived from a Latin term 'civis' which indicates 'someone who resides in a town'.
