Red Bird - Mary Oliver | GRIFFINPOETRY
Mary Oliver's simple, spiritual, nature-infused poetry was never better. She teaches us all to watch all the details of Gods creations without preaching. We learn from the movement of her poetry, to recognize a cardinal when he lands, to know the names of all of natures wonders: pine needles and prairie dogs, cypress and elm,and we love the class as we learn.

Mary Oliver is 70 years old and still "in love with life" and "still full of beans" as she notes in "Self-Portrait." She savors the ocean, visits a graveyard, salutes a red bird in winter, heeds the invitation of a group of goldfinches to attend their performance, and finds lessons in teachings of an owl and a mockingbird.
